IS YOUR HORSE GETTING ENOUGH FIBRE??

The horse evolved to eat one type of food: grass. Good-quality pasture or roughage should be the prime ingredient in the diet. Roughage contains fibre, which aids digestion, satisfies hunger, and meets basic energy requirements. Access to an adequate supply of fibre decreases the incidence of wood chewing.

More information can be found at: <https://ker.com/equinews/fibre-basis-feeding-horses/>

Ker Low GI

Low GI Cube derives energy from fats and digestible fibre, making it ideal for horses that do not tolerate cereal grain. Designed to slowly digest and absorb feed. Contains two super-fibre sources, beet pulp and soy hulls.

Speedi-Beet

A highly nutritious, quick soaking beet pulp feed, with no added molasses and 95% sugar free. Starch free and low in sugar, so safe for laminitics. Feed it in small amounts to overweight horses or in larger quantities to a poor doer for weight gain.

Maxisoy

The ultimate super fibre feed for all horses. Is a Low GI super fibre pellet. Safe for laminitics. Molasses and cereal grain free. Feed smaller amounts for weight loss and larger amounts for weight gain.

Cool Stance Copra

100% dried, cooked and ground coconut, chemical and GMO free, may be beneficial for conditioning, weight gain, coat shine and hoof health, aflatoxin tested.

Hygain Fibre Essentials

Suitable for all horses, it is based on super fibres providing an enhanced level of digestibility. Feeding rates can be reduced by a third in volume when compared to traditional horse chaff and reduced sugar levels.

Sheep & Goat Wormer

The easiest way to worm small numbers of goats or sheep.

Easy to use dial-a-dose applicator

Contains morantel citrate

Economical.
